

Introducing Matt McCracken

Matt has recently joined Lornham bringing with him an impressive breadth of experience within the property management industry.

This includes the management of mixed tenure housing developments, and more recently focusing on leasehold block management within the London market.

He enjoys being involved in major works projects from inception through to completion with a particular interest in building surveying.

As a member of the Institute of Residential Property Management Matt is now looking to acquire further industry relevant accreditation with the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors (RICS) and the Institution of Occupational Safety & Health (IOSH).

Away from work Matt enjoys watching a number of sports and occasionally can be found hiking in the Scottish highlands.
