ANZAC DAY GALLIPOLI

Dominic is currently in Gallipoli commemorating ANZAC Day with an old friend he met in Australia 26 years ago.

They spent last night on the beach, a site of a significant battle during WW1 where many soldiers from the allied forces (British, Australian & New Zealand) lost their lives. This holds a special significance for Australians who consider Gallipoli as the 'birth of their nation'

Today began with a Dawn Service at 5 am, which Dominic attended, followed by the Australian National Ceremony at Lone Pine and the New Zealander National Ceremony at Chunuk Bair.

We send peaceful wishes to everyone today and take time to consider a quote from Turkish President Mustafa Ataturk for a moment of reflection.
